The birth-day Ball at the Exchange last night was quite a brilliant affair. The hall was tastefully drest in military style. The National roof, the banners of our different militay corps hanging from the walls, the clustering arms which here and there along the hall, with their back the light of the many lamps, with the gavuniform of the military, and the beauty and lashion of their fair purthers, as they floated in airy motion to the sound of lively music, presented a picture'sque and enchanting scene. THE TOPKISH REAUTY AND THE RUSSIAN NOBLE. BY MISS PARDOR.

I have already stated that the commandant was ludged beneath the same roof as his prisoner; but I have yet to tell that he had an only daughter, so young, and so lovely, that she might have taken her stand between the two Houri who wait at the Portal of Paradise to beckon the faithful across the threshold, without seeming less beautiful than they. Fifteen springs. had with their delicate breathings upcord the petals of the roses since the birth of Rechedi Hanoun, and she had far out-bloomed the brightest blossoms of the fairest sessons. Her voice, when it was poured forth in song, came through the lattices of her casement like the tones of a distant mandolin sweeping over the waters of the still sea when you looked upon her, it was as though you looked upon a rose, and when you listened, you seemed to listen to the nightıngale. Rechedi Hanoun had never yet poured the scented sherbet in the garden of flowers. Her young heart was as free as the breeze that came to her brow from the blue bosom of the Propontis, and when she heard that a Muscovite Giaour was about to become the inmate of the Tower, she only trembled, for she knew that he wee the exemp of her country.

Terror was, however, soon succeeded by curiouity. Only a few weeks after the compulsatory domestication of the Ambassador at the Seven Towers, his kiesk was co-pleted; and from her glosed easments the young Hanoun could see all that passed in the vast apartment of the

Thus were things situated during two long years, when the death of the seigning Sultan, in the old Methodist Meetinghouse next at the termination of that period, induced the bath. Ambassadors of England and France to demand from his successor, Selim III, the liberty of the Russian Minister. The request was refused, for the, war was not vel terminated; and the new Sovereign required no better pretext for disregurding the representations of the European Ambassadors, than the continuation of hostile tica between the two countries... But Selim had other and more secret reasons for thus peremptorily negativing their prayer; and it will be seen n the saite that they did not arise from personal dislike to the captive Muscovite. Like Haroun Alraschid of Arabian memory.

the new Sultan, during the first weeks of his reign, amused himself by nocturnal wanderings about the atrecta of the city in diagnise; attended by the subacquently tamous Hussien, his first and favorite body-page; and immediately- DAY, the 12th day of Marchinest, at y vites that he had refused compliance with the deing an incognito visit to his prisoner at the Seven Towers. On receiving this answer, Eclien replied guily that the Sultan need never be informed of the oncumetances; and that being a negz relation. o the Commandant, and having obtained his permission to have a few minutes conversation with the prisoner, he trusted that he should not encounter any obstacle either on the part of the Baron himself, or on that of his friends. The Dragoman, with affected reluctance quitted the room, to ascertain, as he asserted, he determination of His Excellency, but in reality to inform him of the Imperial masquerade; but in five minutes more the dustinguished Sul tan and his favourite were ushered into the apartment of the Ambassador.

After some inconsequent conversation, Selim inquired how the Baron had contrived to divert the weary hours of his captivity! and was answered that he had endeavored to lighten them by books, and by gazing out upon the sea of Marmora from his kiosk. Bulkakoff sighed as he made the reply, and remembered how much more they had been brightened by the M. lection of the Rechedi Hanoun; any he almost felt as though he were an ingrate that he did not add her similes and her solicitude to the list of his prison bleasings.

"The same volume and the same kinek cannot please forever;" said the Bultan with a stoile; "and you would not, undoubtedly, be sorry to exchange your books against the conversation of your fellow-men; nor your view of the blue Propontis for one more novel. A prison is but a prison at the best, even though you may be locked up with all the courtesy in the world. But your captivity is not likely to endure much longer. Shekiur Allah! Praise he to God I am intimately acquainted with the Sultan's Tavourite; and I know that, had-not the meddling ministers of England and France sought to drive the new Sovereign into an act of justice, which he had resolved to perfor from inclination, you would have been ere this, at liberty. NEW AND VALUABLE SCHOOL nour!

THE attenuous of School Committees Trachers and Parents is invited to the examination of the "Juventer Reader," a selection of easy Reading Lessons, by a Teacher a new edition of which, revised and corrected we have just published. It is believed that the book is one which has been yo Dymuch wanted in our common schools, and in deed it was compiled at the request of many of our best Teachers. The compiler is a gentleman our best Teachers. The compiler is a gentleman a great variety of qualities, drah, brown mixed of known ab hies and long experience in his profession. The pieces in this book are chiefly se-lected from popular works designed for youth, and tis believed, will have a healthy moral influence in those schools in which it is adopted. The book comes at a very toworkee and has been adjusted in a great many Schools with decided approbation and having been stereoty ped, is free from the danger of having any alterations made in it, which is the greatest trouble with all achool books

Those connected with schools, at titlerested in any manner, are requested to call and examine it SMITH & PENNO, nov 9 — M West Market Square.

L-DISEASES OF THE LUNGS. Descriedly the most popular remedy ever known in America ECETABLE PULMONARY BAL-

SAH The following recommendation is from Extract of a letter from Dr Janob Myers,
The Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam has been sold in this country for two years, and the medicine has guined as uncommon celebrity, for it scarcely n one instance failed of having the desired effect I am by no means in favor of the many nostrums must of which are impositions upon a credition public, but that which I know by experience to be efpublic, but that which I know by experience to be effectual, I cannot help but give my approhition thereto A counterful praparation has been offered here by a tax elling agent of Comstock N Y and there is also Another article wended here that is strongly the risk to be sputhous.
